Our History

SWEE KEE EATING HOUSE

Started by our grandfather, the late Mr Tang Kwong Swee, SWEE KEE EATING HOUSE's history dates back to 1939. As an enterprising young man in his 20s looking to create a better life for his family, he started his first restaurant called Peach Garden (桃园), located at Great World Amusement Park, however it subsequently closed due to World War II. Undaunted by the closure of his restaurant and armed with a strong entrepreneurial spirit, Mr Tang Kwong Swee started a roadside hawker stall in the late 1940s along Chin Chew Street (Tofu Street) to support his family.

Within a few years, he decided to purchase a shophouse at 18 Chin Chew Street and started SWEE KEE EATING HOUSE, expanding his menu to include more stir-fry dishes and becoming the first zichar restaurant in Singapore.

KA-SOH

Who is KA-SOH one might ask? Ka-Soh Por was a waitress hired together with her mother-in-law by the late Mr Tang Kwong Swee during the days of Swee Kee as a roadside hawker stall along Chin Chew Street. Despite her fiery temper and no-nonsense nature, customers remember her fondly and would constantly return to visit Ka Soh Por.

Intertwined with Swee Kee Eating House's history, Ka-Soh is a house-hold name in the Singapore, patronised by generations of Singaporeans, founded by Tang Tat Cheong in 1995. The brand came to be from the nickname which regular customers gave to Swee Kee Eating House, Ka-Soh.

PIONEERS AND HOME OF THE CANTONESE-STYLE FISH SOUP

Widely known to be the pioneers of fish soup in Singapore, Swee Kee and Ka-Soh restaurants till this day maintains the traditional methods of boiling fish soup in Singapore, unchanged from the 1930s. From the robust fish stock that is house-made, the texture and colour of the milky white broth is achieved without the use of evaporated milk, through infusing the fish stock with copious amount of fish bones.

Featuring the Snakehead fish (toman) for both the stock and soup, a species of fish native to Asia, known for its healing properties, the fish soup is high in calcium, collagen and protein, as well as Omega-3 fatty acid, amino acids and minerals.

Presently, the restaurants in Singapore is being run by its third-generation owners and Ka-Soh has since established footprints in Indonesia, with Ka-Soh Restaurant in Outram being awarded as Singapore Michelin Guide's Bib Gourmand restaurant from 2016-present.
